ABOUT US

At Cornish Industrial Supplies - or CIS for short - we offer reliability, support, and cost-effective solutions to your business' workplace safety needs. We are a family-owned and operated company based in St Austell, Cornwall. In 1998 Alastair Munn took over the existing CIS, bringing with him 30 years of experience and establishing the company as a trusted partner for businesses in the food production, pharmaceutical and hospitality industries. 25 years later, and in the safe hands of Alastair's sons, family and reliability are still at the core of everything we do at CIS.

We are proud to offer a comprehensive range of hygiene, clothing, personal protective equipment (PPE), and workplace safety equipment. As an ISO14001 and 9001 certified business you can count on our reliability of supply, support and advice. Our commitment to professional service and our comprehensive customer focused approach have become hallmarks of CIS and have earned us the trust of numerous dairies, bakeries, and similar facilities.

We specialise in corporate & hi-visibility clothing, hand protection and safety footwear and alongside these products can offer a complete supply of cleaning and hygiene equipment, catering essentials, first aid materials and safety signs.

The needs of your business are what we are interested in and we respond with solutions that work and products that perform. We strive to offer more than the standard, aiming to build relationships with our customers in order to achieve the best and most cost effective results for your business.

We welcome you to browse the ranges in this brochure, if you need to discuss specific or quantity requirements please use the details on the back cover to request a quote or site visit. We have friendly, knowledgeable staff available from 7:30am to 4:30pm Mondays to Fridays who can advise, support and guide you and your company from initial request through to final solution.

WORKWEAR

— What is right for you? —

We offer 3 options for branding your workwear: screen printing, indirect heat transfer or embroidery. Branding your workwear can help to market your business, boost brand awareness and improve team morale. If you aren't sure what is the best option for your business, read the snapshot below or you can speak to a member of our customer services team for more information and tailored advice.

The 3 printing options at a glance:

- Indirect heat transfer can be applied to nearly any garment and is the most cost effective option, so is suited to small runs.
- Embroidery is the most durable and long-lasting option and produces the most professional results.
- Screen printing is only suited for very large runs, colour pictures or detailed designs.

Contact our team of expert advisors for more information. Office Hours 7.30am - 4.30pm - Monday to Friday

Understanding Safety Standards

Gloves are widely varied and usage needs to be considered. To make sure you order the correct gloves for the work you are doing, we've explained the difference between two common standards - EN388 and EN511 - below:

EN388 and EN511 are European standards that are used to assess and classify gloves for specific types of protection. The EN 388:2016+A1:2018 standard is intended to be used in conjunction with EN388:2003.

CUT RESISTANT THERMAL

berg Thermal Fleece Lined Filleting Glove

GL05100

EN388 assesses gloves for protection against mechanical risks, specifically abrasion, cut resistance, tear resistance, and puncture resistance. You may see one of two different ratings. In 2016 the EN 388 test for cut-resistance changed, and a new test was added that improves the assessment of how gloves stand up to real-world use. If you see a product with both ratings, we recommend using the EN 388:2016 ISO cut resistance rating as it is more up to date.

How are these ratings shown? EN 388:2003 awards a rating between level 1 and 5. A four-digit code is used to represent the performance of gloves in a particular category. The higher the number, the better the performance on a scale of 0-5. For EN 388:2016 there is a rating between levels A and F.

Here is an example: If a glove has a rating of 4543F under EN388, it means that the glove offers good protection against abrasion (4), excellent protection against blade cuts (5), good tear resistance (4), average protection against punctures (3) and an excellent ISO cut resistance rating (F).

Visit our website or contact our team of expert customer service advisers for more information and to find the standard ratings of our products.

EN511 assesses gloves based on their ability to provide protection against cold contact (convective and contact cold) and thermal hazards, for weather conditions or environments where exposure to low temperatures and cold materials is a concern.

How are these ratings shown? The standard provides ratings for: Resistance to Convective Cold (0-4), Resistance to Contact Cold (0-4), and Water Impermeability (0-1). Higher numbers indicate better performance in each category.

Here is an example: If a glove has a rating of 221 under EN511 it would offer moderate resistance to convective cold (2), moderate resistance to contact cold (2), and be impermeable to water (1).

Depending on the specific hazards and requirements of your work or activity, you may need gloves that comply with one or both of these standards. It's essential to choose gloves that match the intended purpose and risks associated with the task or environment.

WASHDOWN & PROTECTIVE CLOTHING

PU or PVC?

When it comes to the choice between PU (Polyurethane) and PVC (Polyvinyl Chloride) materials for protective clothing, performance and comfort are key. We've explained the key differences between these two materials below so you can make sure you order the correct products for your work needs:

Flexibility and Comfort:

Protective clothing made from PU is generally more flexible and more comfortable to wear. It allows for greater freedom of movement so is the right choice for situations that require a wide range of motion. PVC provides good protection but is less flexible and therefore can be less comfortable to wear for extended periods.

Weight:

PU is more lightweight than PVC.

Water Resistance:

PU provides adequate protection against water, whereas PVC is naturally waterproof and a great choice for wet conditions that require protective clothing.

Durability:

In rugged environments, PU may wear out faster than PVC. PVC is known for its durability and ability to withstand harsh conditions and demanding environments.

SUPPORT

— How can we support your business? —

At CIS we can provide your business with a wide range of support to help meet workplace safety and hygiene protocols. How can we help?

We offer pre-audit visits and consultations, including manufacturers support to help identify and address concerns in preparation of an audit.

We conduct UK-wide site visits, enabling in-depth discussions on workplace safety and hygiene while assessing challenges and formulating tailored recommendations.

And once an audit has taken place, we can help meet audit requirements with the fast turnaround of special items and urgent needs across PPE, hygiene, signage and workwear.

To provide well-rounded solutions, we maintain a collaborative approach to helping to support businesses. If required, we engage with additional hygiene and cleaning advisors and manufacturers to ensure comprehensive recommendations.

COSHH Cabinets

We have a selection of storage solutions that are purpose-built for the secure storage of hazardous materials such as fuels and chemicals. These product ranges are designed to ensure full compliance with all necessary regulations and prioritise safety and environmental responsibility.
